

Attendance Approval — Head Teacher Guide

VTMS · vCrop Technologies

This guide explains the attendance approval queue, what every column and button means, and exactly when to approve versus reject a record. Read this once, and you should never be unsure how to review an attendance submission again.

What lands in your queue — and what doesn't

The Pending approval tab shows Conducted classes on Working days from your own schools that have not yet been decided — and it now also shows Cancelled classes and All Classes Cancelled days that don't yet have a formal Class Cancellation record behind them.

If you, as Head Teacher, have already raised a formal Class Cancellation for that exact class or date, that resulting attendance record is auto-approved the instant it's submitted — you've already made that call, so it never reaches this queue. Not Conducted classes and non-working days that are always genuinely non-working (School Holiday, On Leave) are always auto-approved and never appear here either.

Your decision on any record in this queue is final — whether it's a Conducted class, or a Cancelled / All Classes Cancelled record with no formal record behind it. There is no second approval step after yours — Org Admin and vCrop Admin are notified of your decision for visibility only, and have no action to take.

Reading the queue table

Column	Shows	Notes
Teacher	Who submitted this record.	—
School	Which of your schools this record is for.	Only records from schools assigned to you appear in your queue.
Class Date	The date the class actually took place.	—
Day	The day of the week for that date.	—
Class	Class and section taught.	Shown as Class-Section, e.g. 8-A. A Cancelled row is marked with a small "Cancelled" tag.
Conducted	Classes conducted vs. classes assigned that day.	Shown as a fraction, e.g. 3/3.
Submitted	When the teacher first submitted this record.	If the record was edited or resubmitted after a rejection, the edited timestamp appears underneath in amber.
Status	Pending, Approved, or Rejected.	Approved/Rejected rows also show who acted, underneath the badge.

The three actions on each row

Action	What it does	Notes
Approve (green check)	One-click final approval.	No confirmation step — clicking it approves immediately. The teacher is notified at once. This is final; there is no second-level approval after yours.
Reject (red X)	Opens a modal requiring a reason.	You cannot submit a rejection without typing a reason — the teacher sees this reason word-for-word.
View (eye icon)	Opens the full record for review.	Always available, even for records you have already decided on. This is where the Action trail lives.

What's inside the full record (View)

Opening a record with the eye icon shows everything the teacher entered: teacher, school, date and day, class/section, subject, Day status, Class status, duration, classes assigned vs. conducted, Topics taught / Remark, and Homework details if provided.

The Action trail

At the bottom of every record is a complete, chronologically-ordered history of everything that happened to it — every submission, edit, resubmission, rejection (with reason), and approval, listed in the order it actually occurred rather than grouped by role. If a record was rejected and later resubmitted and approved, you will still see the original rejection and its reason, not just the final outcome. Nothing is ever hidden or overwritten.

Approve or reject? — Full scenario guide (Conducted classes)

This is the table that matters most for Conducted classes. Match the row that fits what you are actually seeing in the record.

What you see	Decision	Notes
Topics taught is specific and matches a normal day's lesson	Approve	The record reads as genuine — specific content, plausible for the subject and class.
Topics taught is vague, generic, or looks copy-pasted from a previous entry	Reject, with a reason	State clearly what is missing, e.g. "Please describe the actual topic covered, not just 'taught class'."
Classes conducted is less than classes assigned, with no explanation	Reject, with a reason	Ask the teacher to clarify why fewer classes were conducted, or to correct the count if it was a data-entry mistake.
A homework file link is attached but does not open, or is not shared publicly	Reject, with a reason	Ask the teacher to re-share with "Anyone with the link" access and resubmit the link.
Everything matches what you know actually happened that day	Approve	No further action needed — the teacher and everyone else are notified automatically.
You are unsure whether the class genuinely happened as described	Reject and ask for clarification, or contact vCrop Admin	It is always safer to ask than to approve on a guess — rejection is not punitive, it simply asks for a clearer record.

Reviewing a Cancelled / All Classes Cancelled record

These rows land in your queue specifically because no formal Class Cancellation record exists for them yet — the teacher or school reported the cancellation, but you haven't logged it yourself.

What you see	Decision	Notes
Matches a cancellation you know actually happened (school event, weather, etc.)	Approve	Consider also raising the formal Class Cancellation yourself afterward for future record-keeping — it won't change this record either way.
You don't recognize this cancellation, or it doesn't match anything you're aware of	Reject and ask, or contact vCrop Admin	Ask the teacher what happened. Don't approve on a guess — this still affects billing as an "Unrecorded Cancellation".
Topics / Remark doesn't explain why the class was cancelled	Reject, with a reason	Ask for a specific reason, same as you would for a vague Conducted entry.

Unlike a Conducted class, whether a Cancelled / All Classes Cancelled record is billable does not depend on your approve/reject decision — that's already determined by whether a formal Class Cancellation record exists and how much advance notice it gave. Your review here is about verifying the record is genuine, not about billing.

Other things to know

Rejecting always requires a reason

The system will not let you submit a rejection with an empty reason box. Be specific — the teacher sees your reason exactly as written, and it is what they will act on when they edit and resubmit.

After you reject, what the teacher can do

The teacher can edit the same record and resubmit it directly — they do not start a new record. Once resubmitted, it reappears in your Pending approval queue for a fresh decision, and your original rejection stays visible in the Action trail alongside the new submission.

Why your decision matters for billing

A Conducted class is only counted as billable to the Organization once you approve it. Careful, honest review protects both the teacher's record and the accuracy of the Organization's billing.

All records vs. Pending approval

The All records tab shows every attendance record regardless of status — useful for looking something up later — but it is read-only for you. Approving and rejecting only happens from the Pending approval tab.

If you are ever unsure

Reject and ask for clarification rather than approving on a guess, or reach out to vCrop Admin if something about a record does not add up.
